ABSTRACT

Comparative information on higher education in the southern states (Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia) compiled by the Southern Regional Education Board is presented. The report is divided into the following seven sections (with sample subtopics in parentheses): revenue and expenditures (tuition and fees, state appropriations, expenditures for educational operations, instruction); state appropriations (increase in operating expenses); tuition and fees (for resident and non-resident, at each level); faculty compensation (average full-time salaries, at each level, faculty benefits, salary differences among disciplines); enrollment (full-time enrollment, at each level); appropriations per student (in senior and junior public institutions); and programs and degrees (by level, by field, in the U.S. and SREB states). Comparative Information on Higher Education in the SREB States

Introduction

As the nation's first interstate compact for higher education, SREB has compiled and refined comparative information on higher education for three decades. While the degree of reliability and comparability has improved greatly over this period, the information should be viewed carefully when comparisons are made among a number of states. For example, periodic changes in the federal reporting guidelines make comparisons over time, using national data, particularly difficult.

The enclosed comparative information was prepared for the 1979 annual meeting of the Fiscal Affairs and Government Operations Committee, Southern Legislative Conference of the Council of State Governments. This report is in response to a mid-August request and therefore contains information on the 14 SREB states which was then available or which could be compiled quickly. The report updates the 1978 data prepared by the Florida legislative staff in conjunction with SREB and also includes more detailed information about revenues, expenditures, appropriations, programs and degrees.

For state policy makers, the value of sharing comparative information is usually not that answers are found immediately but that questions are raised which may lead to better state policies and procedures. SREB staff assistance is available to states where this information may prompt questions and discussion about higher education trends in the South.

In 1977, the six educational and general items do not add to the total because about $59 per student ($37 noninflated) in mandatory transfers were excluded. The total educational and general expenditure includes these transfers in both years. In 1973, these transfers were reported among the six items. It would be approximately correct to apply the transfer amounts to plant operation, which would increase the percent change in this category between 1973 and 1977.

Note: Includes all educational and general appropriations for full 1978-79 year except for non-instructional community service activities and cooperative extension, experiment stations, medical, dental, and optometry schools, and training hospitals.

[a]Includes $212,873 in reserve funds that are not yet distributed to specific institutions.
[b]North Carolina's two-year data are not available and therefore not included in the totals.
[c]South Carolina does not include any federal revenue sharing funds, which are used to pay for approximately half of fringe benefits.
[d]Includes a substantial amount of appropriations for continuing education enrollment for which credit hours are not awarded.
[e]Texas includes the federal revenue sharing funds that they apply to higher education.

Footnotes for: Average State Support of Faculty Benefits, As Percentage of Average Faculty Salary, Public Institutions, SREB States, 1978-79

*Average state-supported faculty fringe benefits were calculated by multiplying the average faculty salary by the total percentage contributed for fringe benefits.

Average faculty compensation was calculated by adding average faculty salary and average faculty fringe benefits.

[1]Arkansas--percentages represent a weighted average as applied to all salaries. Actual pension contributions range from 6 to 12 percent.

[2]Kentucky--State support for benefits varies across institutions. Health insurance varies from .44 to 3.50 percent, pension from 7.84 to 10.0, life insurance from .09 to 1.04, and disability from 0 to .97.

[3]North Carolina--State contribution is 9.02 percent for State Retirement Plan and 5.90 percent for TIAA Plan.

[4]Texas--The state pays both the employer's and employee's share of social security. However, in 1978-79 the state contribution for the employee's share will average less than 6.13 percent because the state paid only 5.85 percent for calendar year 1979 with the employee contributing the difference between 5.85 and 6.13 percent.

[5]Virginia--The percentage for state support of retirement is based on an estimate of the actuarially funded contribution to the Virginia Supplemental Retirement System.

Note: Full-time-equivalent enrollments were calculated according to the following formulas: Undergraduate enrollment = Undergraduate Credit Hours ÷ 15; Graduate enrollment = Graduate Credit Hours ÷ 12. Includes enrollment in any courses creditable to a bachelor's or higher degree or other formal recognition below the baccalaureate. Includes credit enrollment at extension centers. Medical, dental and optometry enrollments are not included.

Large doctoral institutions award 100 or more doctorates; small doctoral institutions award fewer than 100.

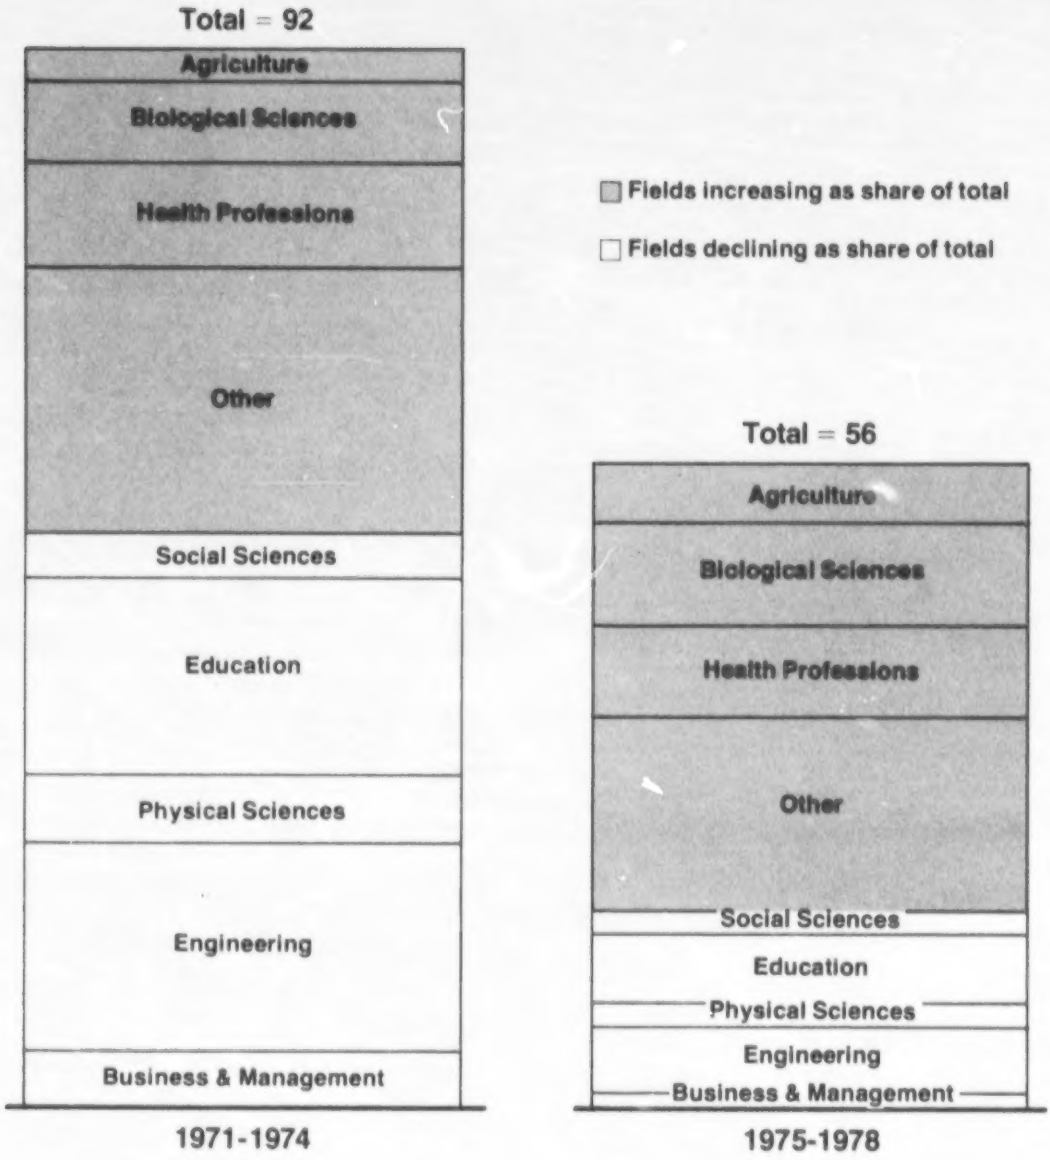
New Doctoral Programs, SREB States 1971 - 1978



Since 1971, 148 doctoral programs have been initiated in the SREB states. During the past four years, however, there has been a slowdown in new programs, with an average of 14 doctoral initiations per year from 1975 to 1978 compared to 23 per year in the earlier period. The areas of program initiation have also changed, with the health professions and biological sciences the most common areas in the last four years, in contrast to the early 1970s when the fi lds of education and engineering were predominant.
